The live-streamed event featured insights from experts on transforming raw campus innovations into scalable, fundable products. It also emphasized the importance of contributing to the YUKTI portal, a national repository managed by MIC, designed to showcase and support student-led innovations. LinkedIn

☐ Key Takeaways

1. Strategies for Identifying and Nurturing Innovative Ideas: The session provided methodologies for recognizing potential innovations within academic settings and nurturing them through structured support systems. Facebook+6LinkedIn+6Instagram+6
 2. Effective Contribution to the YUKTI Portal: Guidelines were shared on how institutions can systematically document and submit innovations to the YUKTI portal, ensuring wider visibility and support. Yukti+2LinkedIn+2Instagram+2
 3. Opportunities for Funding and Incubation: Information was provided on various funding avenues and incubation support available for innovations listed on the YUKTI platform, facilitating their journey from ideation to market readiness. LinkedIn
 4. Real-World Examples: The session highlighted successful case studies where student innovations were transformed into impactful products, demonstrating the practical application of the discussed strategies. en.wikipedia.org+5LinkedIn+5Yukti+5

☐ Institutional Participation

Several institutions actively participated in the session, reflecting a nationwide commitment to fostering innovation. For instance, ABESIT College of Engineering reported active engagement in the session, noting the valuable insights gained in nurturing the innovation ecosystem on their campus .LinkedIn

□ About the YUKTI Portal

The YUKTI (Young India Combating COVID with Knowledge, Technology, and Innovation) portal is an initiative by the Ministry of Education to systematically catalog innovations and startups developed within academic institutions. It serves as a platform to showcase these innovations, providing them with visibility and facilitating support in terms of funding, mentorship, and incubation .LinkedIn+1Yukti+1

□ Conclusion

The session underscored the critical role of structured innovation repositories like YUKTI in transforming academic ideas into viable startups. By providing a systematic approach to documenting and supporting innovations, institutions can significantly enhance their contribution to the national innovation landscape. The collaborative efforts encouraged during the session aim to build a robust ecosystem where campus-born ideas can thrive and make meaningful societal impacts.
